PETER H. REYNOLDS

Art class was over, but Vashti sat
glued to her chair.

Her paper was empty.

Vashti's teacher leaned
over the blank paper.

"Ah! A polar bear
in a snow storm," she said.

"Very funny!" said Vashti.

"I just CAN'T draw!"

Her teacher smiled.

"Just make a mark and

Vashti grabbed a marker and gave the paper a good, strong jab.

"There!"

Her teacher picked up the paper
and studied it carefully.

"Hmmm."

She pushed the paper toward Vashti and quietly said,
"Now sign it."

Vashti thought for a moment.

"Well, maybe I can't draw,
but I CAN sign my name."

The next week,
when Vashti walked into art class,
she was surprised to see what was

It was the little dot
she had drawn — HER DOT!
All framed in swirly gold!

"Humph!
I can make a better dot
than THAT!"

She opened her never-before-used set of

Vashti painted and painted.

A red dot.

A purple dot.

A yellow dot.

A blue dot.

The blue mixed with the yellow.
She discovered that she could make a GREEN dot.

Vashti kept experimenting.
Lots of little dots in many colors.

"If I can make little dots,
I can make BIG dots, too."

Vashti splashed her colors with a bigger brush on bigger paper

Vashti even made a dot
by NOT painting a dot.

At the school art show a few weeks later,
Vashti's many dots made quite a splash.

Vashti noticed a little boy
gazing up at her.

"You're a really great artist.
I wish I could draw," he said.

"I bet you can," said Vashti.

"ME? No, not me. I can't draw a straight line with a ruler."

Vashti smiled.

She handed the boy a

"Show me."

The boy's pencil shook

Vashti stared at the boy's squiggle.

And then she said...

"Sign it."
